

Shop-Made Thumbscrews

Whenever he needs an odd-sized thumbscrew, Philip Jacobs of Saint Paul, Minnesota, simply makes his own. He threads a bolt into a wire connector as far as it will go and fills the void with epoxy. After the epoxy cures, he cuts off the bolt head.