<ul> <li>1) Using the Mouse (Date Completed:)</li> <li>The student successfully navigates the mouse and clicks on the following icons or programs.</li> <li>Open Microsoft Word</li> <li>Open Microsoft Word</li> <li>Open Alphanumeric Keyboarding</li> <li>2) Identifying the Parts of a Computer System (Date Completed:)</li> <li>The student successfully identifies the following parts of a computer system.</li> <li>Monitor</li> <li>CPU</li> <li>Disk Drive (A:/ Drive)</li> <li>CD Drive</li> <li>Keyboard</li> <li>Mouse</li> <li>Printer</li> <li>3) Computer Terminology (Date Completed:)</li> <li>The student successfully identifies the following computer terms by writing in the correct term for each definition.</li> <li>Soft Copy Hard Copy Operating System Hardware Software</li> <li> The instructions the computer uses to set up your hardware to work togethe in a certain format. See examples below.</li> <li>a) DoS Obs Obs Operating System - Used text commands to perform functions.</li> <li>b) Windows 3.1—Incorporated graphics to make more user friendly.</li> <li>c) Windows 3.4Me—Furthered the use of graphics and mean commands to make a more organized and easily changed or manipulated.</li> <li></li></ul>	Computer Fundamentals Constraints           Name:	CB Instructor:
<ul> <li>The student successfully navigates the mouse and clicks on the following icons or programs. Open My Computer Open Microsoft Word Open Netscape Open Alphanumeric Keyboarding</li> <li>21 Identifying the Parts of a Computer System (Date Completed:) <ul> <li>The student successfully identifies the following parts of a computer system. Monitor</li> <li>CPU Disk Drive (A:/ Drive)</li> <li>CD Drive Keyboard Mouse Printer</li> </ul> </li> <li>31 Computer Terminology (Date Completed:) <ul> <li>The student successfully identifies the following computer terms by writing in the correct term for each definition. Soft Copy Hard Copy Operating System Hardware Software</li> <li> The instructions the computer uses to set up your hardware and software to work togethe in a certain format. See examples below.</li> <li>a) DOS (Disk Operating System) — Used text commands to perform functions. b) Windows 3.1 — Incorporated graphics to make more user friendly.</li> <li>(c) Windows 5.9/8/Mc— Furthered the use of graphics and menu commands to make a more organized and easy-to-use operating system.</li> <li> Information on the computer screen or another display that can be easily changed and manipulated.</li> <li> The information created in programs and operating systems that does not have a physical make-up.</li> <li>The physical equipment of a computer's start up procedure.</li> </ul> </li> <li>5) Working with the Desktop (Date Completed:) <ul> <li>The proteing system used in the computer start up procedure.</li> </ul> </li> <li>5) Working with the Desktop (Date Completed:) <ul> <li>The toudent successfully identifies the following terms by writing in the correct word for each definition.</li> <li> The main screen of Windows XP.</li> <li> Another name for the pictures used to activate programs.</li> </ul> </li> </ul>	1) Using the Mouse (Date Completed:	)
Open Microsoft Word         Open Microsoft Word         Open Alphanumeric Keyboarding         2) Identifying the Parts of a Computer System (Date Completed:)         - The student successfully identifies the following parts of a computer system.         Monitor         CPU         Disk Drive (A:/Drive)         CD Drive         Keyboard         Mouse         Printer         3) Computer Terminology (Date Completed:)         - The student successfully identifies the following computer terms by writing in the correct term for each definition.         Soft Copy       Hard Copy         Operating System       Hardware         Soft Copy       Hard Copy         Operating System       Hardware and software to work togethe in a certain format. See examples below.         a) DOS (Disk Operating System)—Used text commands to perform functions.         b) Windows 3.1—Incorporated graphics to make more user friendly.         c) Windows 95/98.Me—Furthered the use of graphics and menu commands to make a more organized and casy-to-use operating system.	- The student successfully navigates the mouse and	l clicks on the following icons or Open Microsoft Word         Open Alphanumeric Keyboarding         2) Identifying the Parts of a Computer System (Date Completed:)         - The student successfully identifies the following parts of a computer system.         Monitor         CPU         Disk Drive (A:/Drive)         CD Drive         Keyboard         Mouse         Printer         3) Computer Terminology (Date Completed:)         - The student successfully identifies the following computer terms by writing in the correct term for each definition.         Soft Copy       Hard Copy       Operating System         — The instructions the computer uses to set up your hardware and software to work togethe in a certain format. See examples below.       a) DOS (Disk Operating System) — Used text commands to perform functions.         b) Windows 3.1 — Incorporated graphics to make more user friendly.       c) Windows 95/98/Mo— Furthered the use of graphics and menu commands to make a more organized and easy-to-use operating system.
Open Netscape         Open Alphanumeric Keyboarding         2) Identifying the Parts of a Computer System (Date Completed:)         - The student successfully identifies the following parts of a computer system.         Monitor         CPU         Disk Drive (A:/ Drive)         CD Drive         Keyboard         Mouse         Printer         3) Computer Terminology (Date Completed:)         - The student successfully identifies the following computer terms by writing in the correct term for each definition.         Soft Copy       Hard Copy         — The instructions the computer uses to set up your hardware and software to work togethe in a certain format. See examples below.         a) DOS Obis Operating System       Hardware         Soft Copy       Hard Copy         DoS Dis Operating System)—Used text commands to perform functions.         b) Windows 3.1— Incorporated graphics to make more user friendly.         c) Windows 3.1— Incorporated graphics to make more user friendly.         c) Windows 3.1— Incorporated graphics to make more user friendly.         d) Windows 3.1— Incorporated graphics to make more user friendly.         c) Windows 95/98/Me— Furthered the use of graphics and menu commands to make a more organized and easy-to-use operating system.
Open Alphanumeric Keyboarding         2) Identifying the Parts of a Computer System (Date Completed:)         - The student successfully identifies the following parts of a computer system.         Monitor         CPU         Disk Drive (A:/ Drive)         CD Drive         Keyboard         Mouse         Printer         3) Computer Terminology (Date Completed:)         - The student successfully identifies the following computer terms by writing in the correct term for each definition.         Soft Copy       Hard Copy         OPerating System       Hardware         Soft Copy       Hard Copy         Openating System       Use a certain format. See examples below.         a) DOS Disk Operating System       Use a certain format. See examples below.         a) DOS Disk Operating System       Use a certain format. See examples below.         a) DOS Disk Operating System       Use of graphics and menu commands to make a more organized and easy-to-use operating system.	1 0
<ul> <li>The student successfully identifies the following parts of a computer system.</li> <li>Monitor</li> <li>CPU</li> <li>Disk Drive (A:/ Drive)</li> <li>CD Drive</li> <li>Keyboard</li> <li>Mouse</li> <li>Printer</li> <li>3) Computer Terminology (Date Completed:)</li> <li>The student successfully identifies the following computer terms by writing in the correct term for each definition.</li> <li>Soft Copy Hard Copy Operating System Hardware Software</li> <li> The instructions the computer uses to set up your hardware and software to work togethe in a certain format. See examples below.</li> <li>a) DOS (Disk Operating System)—Used text commands to perform functions.</li> <li>b) Windows 3.1—Incorporated graphics to make more user friendly.</li> <li>c) Windows 95/98/Me—Furthered the use of graphics and menu commands to make a more organized and casy-to-use operating system.</li> <li> Information on the computer screen or another display that can be easily changed and manipulated.</li> <li> The information created in programs and operating systems that does not have a physical make-up.</li> <li>The physical equipment of a computer system (i.e. monitor, CPU, printer, etc.)</li> <li>4) Starting the Computer (Date Completed:)</li> <li>The student successfully performs the computer's start up procedure.</li> <li>5) Working with the Desktop (Date Completed:)</li> <li>The student successfully identifies the following terms by writing in the correct word for each definition.</li> <li> The operating system used in the computer lab that uses menus and a "Start" button.</li> <li> The main screen of Windows XP.</li> <li> Another name for the pictures used to activate programs.</li> </ul>
<ul> <li>The student successfully identifies the following parts of a computer system.</li> <li>Monitor</li> <li>CPU</li> <li>Disk Drive (A:/ Drive)</li> <li>CD Drive</li> <li>Keyboard</li> <li>Mouse</li> <li>Printer</li> <li>3) Computer Terminology (Date Completed:)</li> <li>The student successfully identifies the following computer terms by writing in the correct term for each definition.</li> <li>Soft Copy Hard Copy Operating System Hardware Software</li> <li> The instructions the computer uses to set up your hardware and software to work togethe in a certain format. See examples below.</li> <li>a) DOS (Disk Operating System)—Used text commands to perform functions.</li> <li>b) Windows 3.1—Incorporated graphics to make more user friendly.</li> <li>c) Windows 95/98/Me—Furthered the use of graphics and menu commands to make a more organized and casy-to-use operating system.</li> <li> Information on the computer screen or another display that can be easily changed and manipulated.</li> <li> The information created in programs and operating systems that does not have a physical make-up.</li> <li>The physical equipment of a computer system (i.e. monitor, CPU, printer, etc.)</li> <li>4) Starting the Computer (Date Completed:)</li> <li>The student successfully performs the computer's start up procedure.</li> <li>5) Working with the Desktop (Date Completed:)</li> <li>The student successfully identifies the following terms by writing in the correct word for each definition.</li> <li> The operating system used in the computer lab that uses menus and a "Start" button.</li> <li> The main screen of Windows XP.</li> <li> Another name for the pictures used to activate programs.</li> </ul>	2) Identifying the Parts of a Computer System (Da	ate Completed:)
CPU         Disk Drive (A:/Drive)         CD Drive         Keyboard         Mouse         Printer         3) Computer Terminology (Date Completed:)         - The student successfully identifies the following computer terms by writing in the correct term for each definition.         Soft Copy       Hard Copy       Operating System       Hardware       Software	- The student successfully identifies the following	parts of a computer system.
Disk Drive (A:/ Drive)         CD Drive         Keyboard         Mouse         Printer         3) Computer Terminology (Date Completed:)         - The student successfully identifies the following computer terms by writing in the correct term for each definition.         Soft Copy       Hard Copy       Operating System       Hardware       Software CD Drive       Keyboard         Mouse       Printer         3) Computer Terminology (Date Completed:)       - The student successfully identifies the following computer terms by writing in the correct term for each definition.         Soft Copy       Hard Copy       Operating System       Hardware       Software Keyboard Mouse Printer         3) Computer Terminology (Date Completed:)         - The student successfully identifies the following computer terms by writing in the correct term for each definition. Soft Copy Hard Copy Operating System Hardware Software Mouse Printer         3) Computer Terminology (Date Completed:)         - The student successfully identifies the following computer terms by writing in the correct term for each definition.         Soft Copy       Hard Copy       Operating System       Hardware       Software Printer         3) Computer Terminology (Date Completed:)         - The student successfully identifies the following computer terms by writing in the correct term for each definition.         Sofi Copy       Hard Copy       Operating System       Hardware       Software	•
<ul> <li>The student successfully identifies the following computer terms by writing in the correct term for each definition.</li> <li>Soft Copy Hard Copy Operating System Hardware Software</li> <li>The instructions the computer uses to set up your hardware and software to work togethe in a certain format. See examples below.</li> <li>a) DOS (Disk Operating System) — Used text commands to perform functions.</li> <li>b) Windows 3.1— Incorporated graphics to make more user friendly.</li> <li>c) Windows 95/98/Me— Furthered the use of graphics and menu commands to make a more organized and easy-to-use operating system.</li> <li>Information that has been printed out and cannot be easily changed or manipulated.</li> <li>Information created in programs and operating systems that does not have a physical make-up.</li> <li>The information created in programs and operating systems that does not have a physical make-up.</li> <li>The physical equipment of a computer 's start up procedure.</li> <li>Starting the Computer (Date Completed:)</li> <li>The student successfully performs the computer's start up procedure.</li> <li>Working with the Desktop (Date Completed:)</li> <li>The operating system used in the computer lab that uses menus and a "Start" button.</li> <li></li></ul>
<ul> <li>The student successfully identifies the following computer terms by writing in the correct term for each definition.</li> <li>Soft Copy Hard Copy Operating System Hardware Software</li> <li>The instructions the computer uses to set up your hardware and software to work togethe in a certain format. See examples below.</li> <li>a) DOS (Disk Operating System) — Used text commands to perform functions.</li> <li>b) Windows 3.1— Incorporated graphics to make more user friendly.</li> <li>c) Windows 95/98/Me— Furthered the use of graphics and menu commands to make a more organized and easy-to-use operating system.</li> <li>Information that has been printed out and cannot be easily changed or manipulated.</li> <li>Information created in programs and operating systems that does not have a physical make-up.</li> <li>The information created in programs and operating systems that does not have a physical make-up.</li> <li>The physical equipment of a computer 's start up procedure.</li> <li>Starting the Computer (Date Completed:)</li> <li>The student successfully performs the computer's start up procedure.</li> <li>Working with the Desktop (Date Completed:)</li> <li>The operating system used in the computer lab that uses menus and a "Start" button.</li> <li></li></ul>	3) Computer Terminology (Date Completed)
term for each definition.       Soft Copy       Hard Copy       Operating System       Hardware       Software
Soft Copy       Hard Copy       Operating System       Hardware       Software		computer terms by writing in the correct
The instructions the computer uses to set up your hardware and software to work together in a certain format. See examples below.         a) DOS (Disk Operating System)—Used text commands to perform functions.         b) Windows 3.1— Incorporated graphics to make more user friendly.         c) Windows 95/98/Me— Furthered the use of graphics and menu commands to make a more organized and easy-to-use operating system.         Information that has been printed out and cannot be easily changed or manipulated.		Hardware Software
<ul> <li>manipulated.</li> <li>The information created in programs and operating systems that does not have a physical make-up.</li> <li>The physical equipment of a computer system (i.e. monitor, CPU, printer, etc.)</li> <li>4) Starting the Computer (Date Completed:) <ul> <li>The student successfully performs the computer's start up procedure.</li> </ul> </li> <li>5) Working with the Desktop (Date Completed:) <ul> <li>The student successfully identifies the following terms by writing in the correct word for each definition.</li> <li>The operating system used in the computer lab that uses menus and a "Start" button.</li> <li>The main screen of Windows XP.</li> <li>Another name for the pictures used to activate programs.</li> </ul> </li> </ul>	<ul> <li>in a certain format. See examples be</li> <li>a) DOS (Disk Operating System)—</li> <li>b) Windows 3.1— Incorporated grap</li> <li>c) Windows 95/98/Me— Furthered to more organized and easy-to-use organized and easy-to-</li></ul>	low. Used text commands to perform functions. whics to make more user friendly. the use of graphics and menu commands to make a perating system.
<ul> <li>make-up. The physical equipment of a computer system (i.e. monitor, CPU, printer, etc.)</li> <li>4) Starting the Computer (Date Completed:) <ul> <li>The student successfully performs the computer's start up procedure.</li> </ul> </li> <li>5) Working with the Desktop (Date Completed:) <ul> <li>The student successfully identifies the following terms by writing in the correct word for each definition.</li> <li>The operating system used in the computer lab that uses menus and a "Start" button.</li> <li>The main screen of Windows XP.</li> <li>Another name for the pictures used to activate programs.</li> </ul> </li> </ul>		or another display that can be easily changed and
<ul> <li>4) Starting the Computer (Date Completed:) <ul> <li>The student successfully performs the computer's start up procedure.</li> </ul> </li> <li>5) Working with the Desktop (Date Completed:) <ul> <li>The student successfully identifies the following terms by writing in the correct word for each definition.</li> <li>The operating system used in the computer lab that uses menus and a "Start" button.</li> <li>The main screen of Windows XP.</li> <li>Another name for the pictures used to activate programs.</li> </ul> </li> </ul>		and operating systems that does not have a physical
<ul> <li>The student successfully performs the computer's start up procedure.</li> <li>5) Working with the Desktop (Date Completed:) <ul> <li>The student successfully identifies the following terms by writing in the correct word for each definition.</li> <li> The operating system used in the computer lab that uses menus and a "Start" button.</li> <li> The main screen of Windows XP.</li> <li> Another name for the pictures used to activate programs.</li> </ul></li></ul>		er system (i.e. monitor, CPU, printer, etc.)
<ul> <li>5) Working with the Desktop (Date Completed:)</li> <li>The student successfully identifies the following terms by writing in the correct word for each definition.</li> <li> The operating system used in the computer lab that uses menus and a "Start" button.</li> <li> The main screen of Windows XP.</li> <li> Another name for the pictures used to activate programs.</li> </ul>	4) Starting the Computer (Date Completed:	)
each definition.       The operating system used in the computer lab that uses menus and a "Start" button.          The main screen of Windows XP.          Another name for the pictures used to activate programs.	- The student successfully performs the computer'	s start up procedure.
each definition.       The operating system used in the computer lab that uses menus and a "Start" button.          The main screen of Windows XP.          Another name for the pictures used to activate programs.	5) Working with the Desktop (Date Completed:	)
"Start" button. The main screen of Windows XP. Another name for the pictures used to activate programs.	- The student successfully identifies the following each definition.	terms by writing in the correct word for
<ul><li> The main screen of Windows XP.</li><li> Another name for the pictures used to activate programs.</li></ul>		he computer lab that uses menus and a
		KP.
<ul> <li>6) Shutting Down the Computer (Date Completed:)</li> <li>- The student successfully performs the computer's shut down procedure.</li> </ul>	Another name for the pictures	used to activate programs.
- The student successfully performs the computer's shut down procedure.	6) Shutting Down the Computer (Data Completed
	- The student successfully performs the computer'	s shut down procedure.