

My Heart Can Be Your Home

You knocked on my hearts door

And though I heard you knocking

I refused to open my hearts door

You came to my house and I left You standing outside

I thought without You I could do much more

I was wrong in thinking I could live without You

The door is open now my heart can be your home

Yes, My heart can be your home

I trusted my own power and I tried to build a tower
Of empty dreams that never seemed to be

You let me do it my way

and I'd thought I'd reached the sky

But my blindness was in thinking I could see

You let me do it my way

and I'd thought I'd reached the sky

But my blindness was in thinking I could see

I was wrong in thinking I could live without You

The door is open now my heart can be your home